Deputy Secretary.

Workshop on the Creation of the Office of Public Participation

Docket No. AD21-9-000

April 16, 2021

Agenda

9:00 am – 9:30 am ET:                      Opening Remarks

9:30 am – 10:45 am ET:                      Panel 1: Affected Communities (1 hr and 15 min)

The Commission will hear directly from members of the public who may be served by the Office of Public Participation (OPP). This panel seeks to understand how members of the public have been affected by the Commission's procedures and how the OPP can engage with the public to navigate Commission proceedings. Panelists include participants in Commission natural gas, liquified natural gas, and hydroelectric infrastructure proceedings, as well as energy users and consumer advocates. This panel may include a discussion of the following topics and questions:

1. How should the OPP coordinate assistance to persons intervening or participating, or seeking to intervene or participate, in a Commission proceeding?
2. What has hindered or helped your ability to participate before the Commission?
3. Have you engaged with other governmental entities—such as local, state, and other federal agencies—on matters involving your interests? If so, how did those agencies engage in outreach, and what practices improved your ability to participate in their processes?
4. What information would be helpful for navigating Commission proceedings?
5. How can the Commission better serve those affected by infrastructure development?
6. What types of concerns are important to different subsets of energy consumers?
7. What challenges do energy consumers face when participating in government proceedings?

Panelists:

- Deb Evans and Ron Schaaf, Affected Landowners, Pacific Connector Gas Pipeline

- Rebekah Hinojosa, Gulf Coast Campaign Representative, Sierra Club
- Ted Glick, Organizer, Beyond Extreme Energy
- Crystal Cavalier, Founder and President, 7Directions of Service

10:45 am – 10:55 am ET:                      Break

10:55 am – 12:10 pm ET:                      Panel 2: The Office of Public Participation’s
Structure and Functions (1 hr and 15 min)

Congress directed the Commission in section 319 of the Federal Power Act (FPA) to establish the OPP to “coordinate assistance to the public with respect to authorities exercised by the Commission,” including assistance to those seeking to intervene in Commission proceedings. (16 U.S.C. § 825q–1). This panel will explore how the OPP should be structured and how it should function to meet this requirement. This panel may include a discussion of the following topics and questions:

1. What should be the OPP’s main functions?
2. Section 319 of the FPA states that the OPP will be administered by a Director. (16 U.S.C. § 825q–1(a)(2)(A)). In addition to the Director, how should the office be structured? What specific staffing and budgetary needs do you envision for the office?
3. Should the Commission consider creating an advisory board for the OPP? If so, what role would the board serve and who should be on the board?
4. How can the OPP work with the Commission to assist the public, while observing the Commission’s ex parte requirements?
5. How can the Commission build equity into the structure and development of the OPP?
6. What safeguards should the Commission put in place to ensure the OPP remains neutral and responsive to the public?

Panelists:

- Tyson Slocum, Director, Energy & Climate Program, Public Citizen
- Kerene Tayloe, Director of Federal Legislative Affairs, WE ACT for

Environmental Justice

- Dr. Marty Rozelle, President, The Rozelle Group and Past President, International Association of Public Participation
- David Springe, Executive Director, National Association of State Utility Consumer Advocates

12:10 pm – 1:10 pm ET:                      Lunch

1:10 pm – 1:55 pm ET:                      Panel 3: Energy and Environmental Justice (45 min)

This panel will discuss how the Commission can best promote equity in its procedures and decision-making and build equity-centered engagement efforts within the OPP. This panel may include a discussion of the following topics and questions:

1. How can the OPP work across the Commission to ensure that Commission proceedings consistently provide sufficient opportunities for public participation?
2. How can the Commission build equity into the structure and development of the OPP? Specifically, how can the OPP assist in efforts to ensure environmental justice during Commission proceedings?
3. How can equity assessment tools be used to prevent, reduce, and eliminate racial discrimination and inequities during Commission proceedings?
4. What steps can the OPP take to effectively reach out to vulnerable communities to ensure that their concerns are taken into consideration?
5. Should the Commission consider creating an advisory board for the OPP? If so, what role would the board serve and who should be on the board?

Panelists:

- Shalanda H. Baker, Deputy Director for Energy Justice, U.S. Department of Energy
- Matthew Tejada, Director, Office of Environmental Justice, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
- Jacqueline Patterson, Senior Director, Environmental and Climate Justice Program, NAACP

1:55 – 3:10 pm ET:                      Panel 4: Coordinating Public Assistance
(1 hour and 15 min)

Congress directed the OPP to coordinate assistance to the public with respect to authorities exercised by the Commission. This panel will explore how the OPP can facilitate greater understanding of Commission processes through public engagement and education. This panel will also consider how the OPP can coordinate public requests for assistance from persons seeking to intervene or participate in proceedings before the Commission and provide detailed guidance and support. This panel may include a discussion of the following topics and questions:

1. How should the OPP coordinate assistance to persons intervening or participating, or seeking to intervene or participate, in a Commission proceeding?
2. What public engagement practices should the OPP perform?
3. How can the OPP assist Tribal Governments in participating in Commission proceedings?
4. How can the OPP communicate complex energy topics and assist in making energy terms and regulations easier to understand?
5. How can the Commission build equity into the structure and development of the OPP? Specifically, how can the OPP assist in efforts to ensure environmental equity during Commission proceedings?
6. What steps can OPP take to effectively reach out to vulnerable communities to ensure that their concerns are taken into consideration?

Panelists:

- Dr. Susan Tierney, Senior Advisor, Analysis Group
- Dr. Shelley Welton, Associate Professor, University of South Carolina School of Law
- Rebecca Tepper, Chief, Energy and Environment Bureau, Office of the Massachusetts Attorney General

3:10 pm – 3:25 pm ET:                      Break

3:25 pm – 4:40 pm ET:                      Panel 5: Intervenor Funding (1 hour and 15 min)

Section 319 of the FPA allows the Commission to promulgate rules to offer compensation for attorney fees and other expenses to intervenors and participants who substantially contribute to a significant Commission proceeding if participation otherwise would result in significant financial hardship. (16 U.S.C. § 825q-1(b)(2)). This panel will explore how the Commission should approach the issue of intervenor compensation and what OPP's role should be with respect to intervenor compensation. This panel may include a discussion of the following topics and questions:

1. What role should the OPP play in facilitating intervenor funding requests and ensuring that stakeholders understand how such requests will be processed? Should the Commission delegate any of its intervenor funding functions to the OPP?
2. How should the Commission establish a budget for intervenor compensation?
3. What can the Commission learn from the administration of existing intervenor compensation programs?
4. What type of showing should be made regarding substantial contribution to the proceeding, significant financial hardship, fees and costs incurred, etc.? How should this information be evaluated to determine whether compensation is warranted?

Panelists:

- Sharon Jacobs, Associate Professor of Law, John H. Schultz Energy and Natural Resources Law Fellow, University of Colorado Law School
- Michelle Cook, Assistant Chief Administrative Law Judge, California Public Utilities Commission
- Jenna Schmidt, Chief Financial Officer, Public Service Commission of Wisconsin
